

CONTINUING EDUCATION (CE) REQUIREMENTS: WHAT COUNTS FOR CE CREDITS?

The intent of the Insurance Council's CE program is for licensees to enhance their technical knowledge and competency in the business of insurance. As such, licensees must meet the CE requirements for their class of licence for each licence period (June 1 and May 31, annually).

To be eligible as CE for the purposes of the Insurance Council's continuing education program, CE courses must meet the technical content requirement.

Effective July 11, 2022, the Insurance Council has introduced a CE Accreditation Program, which is designed to support licensees in meeting their CE requirements and provide an up-to-date list of courses and course providers accredited by the Insurance Council that qualify for CE credit.

Please note that prior to the introduction of the CE Accreditation Program on July 11, 2022, courses and course providers were not accredited or approved by the Insurance Council.

Courses not accredited by the Insurance Council could still qualify for CE credits provided they meet the requirements of the CE Guidelines, but it is the licensee's responsibility to self-assess the course.

Technical content includes courses, seminars or programs that directly relate to:

- Insurance products (based on the class of licence held)
- Financial planning focused on life insurance content (For Life and A&S agents only)
- Compliance with insurance legislation and requirements
- Errors & Omissions Insurance
- Ethics

*Technical content for Level 3 licensees is broadened to include courses relating to management, accounting, and human resources.

Here are some examples of course material that would meet the Insurance Council's technical content requirement; however, the list is not exhaustive. If you have questions about the Insurance Council's CE requirements, please contact the Practice & Quality Assurance team for more information.
